MARCH

National Day Calendar

Ah, March, in like a lion, out like a lamb, or so the saying goes. That's not the only saying attributed to the moody month. For the Northern Hemisphere, March ushers in spring. That was even true back in the days of the Julian calendar when there were only 10 months and March started off the year. Sayings such as "A bushel of March dust is worth a King's ransom," and "March many weathers," remind us of the swiftly changing and windy weather March brings.

The first three days in March were once considered bad luck. They called them the blind days. No one would plant, enter into an agreement, or a journey during these days. Speaking of the beginning of March, there are some pretty tasty holidays to keep us appeased while the weather makes up its mind. Peanut butter and Banana Cream Pie are just a couple of them.

March is also known for its borrowing days. Though the story has changed through the ages, the month is no stranger to tumultuous weather. Hundreds of years ago the borrowing days were known to be any wild weather day in March. In later years, the days came to be assigned to the last three days in March. The end of the month gets down to business, too. We're talking Mom and Pop Business Day, Walks in the Park and Prom. Serious stuff.

Weather & Seasons

Spring makes its appearance in March with the vernal equinox, and with it comes a lot of activity in nature. Birds migrate. Animals begin to mate. (They give us the phrase, "Mad as a March hare," too.) Plants begin to grow. Even the full moon gets involved. The full moon in March is called the Worm Moon. It earns this name because of all the insects beginning to hatch.

Birth Flowers – Daffodile and jonquil

Birth Stone – Aquamarine

Zodiac Signs – Pisces and Aries

Daylight saving time also adds an element of tradition and rancor to the season as many (though not all) spring forward and change their clocks one hour.

Fast Facts

* Historically, planting and war go hand in hand in March. Named for the Roman god of War, Mars, March became a time when armies began to march again and farmers tilled their soil. While farming and the military have both dramatically changed since Roman times, March and spring still hold power over both of them.

* March Madness kicks into high gear as basketball enthusiasts cheer on their favorite teams. Whether cheering on a local high school team or their college and professional players, fans wear their colors and watch every nail-biting game.

* Beware the Ides of March. When the world used the Roman calendar, the middle of each month was called the "Ides." What makes March so special? Well, the 15th was always the midpoint in March, and in 44 BC an oracle predicted Julius Caesar's downfall to be no later than the Ides of March.

* The phrase "in like a lion, out like a lamb" refers to the proverb that says:
"If March comes in like a lion, it will go out like a lamb."

However, it may also refer to the constellations Leo and Aries. Leo rises in the east early in March but Aries sets in the west at the end of March.

When No One Likes to Do the Dishes

By Jacey Wanner, Region 7 Parent Family Education

Honesty time, most days my house is a complete mess. I have piles of dirty laundry on the floor and piles of clean laundry waiting on the couch for me to fold. Dirty dishes from too many meals are piled on my counter and crumbs, all the crumbs, are on every surface of my home.

Everyone in my family has certain messy things that bother them. My husband yells (or requests in a firm voice) for my daughter to wash her hands before touching our piano. "How many times do I have to tell you this!" he says under his breath. I yell back to stop yelling and shaming her only to walk into the bedroom to see wet towels on the ground and quip at him, "how many times do I have to tell you to put your towels away!" This circle continues for every member of our family until we are all angry, annoyed, and nothing in our house has been cleaned up.

Cleanliness can be a major source of contention in families as everyone has a different level of disorganization and messiness they feel comfortable living in.

I hear from parents frequently that they despise how disgusting their kids keep their rooms or how it is difficult to get their children to help do the dishes. One of the parents I am referring to in this situation may be myself.

What can parents and caregiver do to help keep our homes clean and include our children in the process of cleaning up?

1. We can help teach our children age appropriate chores. Kids as young as two can help throw things in the garbage, wipe up spills, and put toys back into a bucket. Four, five, and six-year-old children can help restore items, set the table, assist with safe food preparation, and do some light dusting. Parents can help teach children chores as a way for everyone to work together. These are also great life skills to for kids to learn from their parents. No one likes doing the dishes, and yet, the dishes need to be cleaned.

2. Parents can set a timer. Everyone in the family speed cleans and put things a way for an allotted time. When the buzzer goes off, everyone who helped gets to play a family game.

3. Make a game plan. Ask your kids what would help them keep the house clean? Would it help if we all spend twenty minutes a night where everyone in the family cleans up? Should we have a cleaning day? Is everyone responsible for a certain chore and the chore switches each week? When kids are part of the conversation, instead of being dictated chores, they are more likely to participate.

When we focus on teaching our kids, working together, and involving them in the conversation involving chores, our kids are learning how to be part of a team.

By participating in chores, kids are also learn how to be hard working, responsible, caring, organized, thoughtful, helpful, and motivated.

My family is going to make a cleaning list this weekend. First thing to tackle are those piles of laundry. As soon as the laundry is washed, folded, and put away, we are going to celebrate with a family game night. Clean and then celebrate – that is our family game plan this weekend.

NORTH DAKOTA GAME & FISH

Game and Fish Offers Wildlife Food Plot Seed

The North Dakota Game and Fish Department is offering free seed for the 2024 growing season to landowners interested in planting wildlife food plots for pheasants.

Rather than a traditional corn or sunflower food plot, this seed mix increases plant diversity, including flowering plants from spring through fall, which will attract insects, the major diet component of pheasant chicks. Additionally, the mix will provide needed cover during spring and summer, as well as a winter food source. Other wildlife species will also benefit from this mix.

Most Game and Fish food plots are part of the department's Private Land Open To Sportsmen program, but this food plot campaign does not require a PLOTS contract, but the department is asking participating landowners to allow reasonable public access, which could simply mean providing access to hunters from time to time, putting up "Ask Before You Enter" signs around the area, or not posting the surrounding land. Additionally, landowners participating in this promotion cannot charge a fee for hunting.

Game and Fish will provide enough seed for a maximum 5-acre planting at no cost.

Landowners interested in receiving the food plot seed must sign up online by April 5. Seed will be available in April at Game and Fish offices in Bismarck, Jamestown, Devils Lake, Harvey, Dickinson, Williston and Riverdale.

Game and Fish private land biologists can provide technical assistance on food plot location and site preparation.

Landowners interested in additional financial incentives may be considered for the PLOTS program as well. More information is available by contacting a private land biologist at any Game and Fish office in the state, or email ndgf@nd.gov.

Hunters, Anglers Asked to Participate in Survey

The North Dakota Game and Fish Department is collaborating with North Dakota State University on a statewide survey aimed at understanding the economic impact of hunting and fishing activities in the state. The survey will be distributed via email to a random sample of hunters and anglers beginning March 11.

Participants will be asked to provide details on their expenditures related to equipment purchases, vehicles, travel, accommodations, and other associated costs incurred during hunting and fishing trips. By conducting this survey, the Game and Fish Department intends to develop a comprehensive understanding of the financial contributions made by hunters and anglers to North Dakota's economy.

If selected for the survey, hunters and anglers are encouraged to participate so their contributions are accurately reflected in important economic data used to inform hunting and fishing policies in the state.

The Dam News, My story

When I moved to this area a few years ago from out of state, I realized that all things revolve around beautiful Lake Sakakawea. The communities wouldn't be here if it wasn't for the Dam and because of the incredible history in this area, The Dam News will celebrate all communities and those within that make this so special. ~Brenda
